IT ASSISTANT (1999-2002) J. ZERDIN

ACKNOWLEDGMENTS

As always, we wish to repeat our debt to the many individuals whose work in the 1970s and 1980s created the large body of material which constitutes the greater part of the project's archive of more than 400,000 records. In the pre-electronic age, their work involved the preparation of a seemingly infinite number of fiches, which line our offices and are still occasionally consulted in moments of uncertainty. For this volume, we think especially of the late J. M. R. Cormack for Greek Macedonia; F. Papazoglu, who undertook to record the material from Macedonia in the former Yugoslavia, with the assistance of L. Jagust; of

D. M. Pippidi and E. Dorutiu Boila for Rumania; J. Brashinsky for the amphora stamps from Chersonesos.

Transforming the assembled material into an edited volume is, of course, a separate and demanding task, and in this volume we have dealt with regions of such diversity that we have been particularly reliant on the collaboration of scholars specialising in the regions in question. We wish to give especial acknowledgment to the following, who have read and commented on files, or provided assistance and advice on topographical and bibliographical matters, across a whole region.

Macedonia and Thrace

Research Centre for Greek and Roman Antiquity, National Hellenic Research Foundation, Athens

Director: M. B. Hatzopoulos

A. Tataki (Macedonia Project)

L. D. Loukopoulou (Thrace Project)

M. Ricl, Belgrade University

Scythia Minor A. Avram, Maine University, Le Mans

Black Sea coast J. Vinogradov, Russian Academy of Sciences, Moscow

Numismatics W. Stancomb

We thank them for their generosity with their scholarship, and their uniquely informed judgments on difficult matters of interpretation. It goes without saying that any remaining errors and omissions are our responsibility.

Macedonia and Thrace

This volume brings to fruition a long and valued collaboration with colleagues at the Centre for Greek and Roman Antiquities, the National Research Foundation of Greece (K.E.R.A.), under the direction of M. Hatzopoulos, who has generously authorised access to the resources of the Centre. A. Tataki read and commented on all the files covering Greek Macedonia; L. D. Loukopoulou and S. Psoma and their colleagues made available to us an advance version of their forthcoming corpus of Aegean Thrace, at some cost to their own work schedule. For Macedonia within the former Yugoslavia, we have received much needed guidance on topographical and many other matters from M. Ricl, who has also allowed us to draw on her knowledge of unpublished material in Belgrade.

Scythia Minor

A. Avram has collaborated for several years over the material from this region. More recently he has read and commented on our files from the whole Black Sea region.

Black Sea coast

Throughout the 1990s, J. Vinogradov was an active collaborator, examining all the files of the colonial cities on the north Black Sea coast. He drew our attention to new readings of inscriptions proposed by S. Tokhtas'ev, (St Petersburg), with whom we have had recent fruitful exchanges. S. Saprykin, (Moscow), reviewed our material from Chersonesos, and assisted with local publications.

Numismatics

We have benefited from the collaboration of W. Stancomb, notably on the coins of the Black Sea area.<sup>1</sup> For the dating of the coinage of Abdera we were fortunate to have access to the chronology established in the doctoral study and forthcoming publication of Dr K. Chryssanthaki (Paris) made available, with Dr Chryssanthaki's permission, through colleagues at K.E.R.A.

For enabling us to cite names from unpublished inscriptions from Thrace in Turkey, we thank M. Sayar, (Istanbul); and E. Voutyras and K. Sismanidis, (Thessaloniki) for permission to cite the names from a new inscription from Dikaia in Macedonia. A. Lajtar, (Warsaw) kindly sent us a copy of his prosopography of Byzantion. K. Hallof, Director of Inscriptiones Graecae, Berlin-Brandenburgische Akademie der Wissenschaften, has continued to respond generously to appeals for help and advice.

It would be paradoxical to acknowledge debts for access to unpublished material without also acknowledging the huge debt a project such as the Lexicon owes to the publications of others, especially to editors of epigraphical corpora and the teams collaborating on the Bulletin Épigraphique, Supplementum Epigraphicum Graecum and L'Année Épigraphique whose works make our own task so much more manageable.

Of Lexicon staff, Ilias Arnaoutoglou, in his period as an Assistant Editor, worked on updating all files in this volume, and has continued to inform us of new discoveries and publications since moving to a post at the Research Centre for the History of Greek Law, at the Academy of Athens. Jason Zerdin as IT Assistant managed and developed our data and computer programs. Advice on our core database, typesetting and web-based systems has come, as before, from J. C. Moffett of the Ashmolean Museum, S. Rahtz of Oxford University Computing Services and Y. Haralambous of the École Nationale Supérieure des Télécommunications de Bretagne.

In 2003, the British Academy formally ceased, after 30 years, to be the main funding body of the Lexicon, though we continue as a British Academy Research Project. Core funding now comes from the Arts and Humanities Research Board (AHRB), whose support we take this opportunity to acknowledge, both for this volume and for our ongoing work on the first volume of the onomasticon of Asia Minor, for which we have also received grants from the J. F. Costopoulos Foundation. It is a particular pleasure to record, once more, the support, moral as well as financial, which we have enjoyed for over a decade from the Archaeological Society at Athens and its Secretary-General B. Petrakos, through whose good offices we have also received a substantial benefaction from the National Bank of Greece.
